MRS. JONATHAN BILGER WILL BE 93 ON MONDAY

One of County's Oldest Residents
Enjoys Good Health

PLANNING CELEBRATION

Nearing her 93rd birthday, which comes on Monday, Feb. 11th, Mrs. Jonathan Bilger, of Pleasant Gap, one of Centre County's oldest residents, is still enjoying remarkably good health and friends say they will not be surprised to see her add year upon year until the century mark is reached.

Mrs. Bilger makes her home with her daughters, Misses Virgie and Annie. Her husband has been dead for fourteen years. She attributes her good health and long years to the simple life. When the weather is favorable, she enjoys being out of doors and takes great pleasure in her flower garden during the summer months, which she cares for herself.

Mrs. Bilger had a family of thirteen children, of whom eleven are living as follows: Misses Virgie and Annie, at home; Mrs. G. W. Rees, Mrs. Abbie Rocky and Wilson (Barney) Bilger, of Bellefonte; Mrs. Harry Cori, of Trafford City; Mrs. Ouis Hille, of Pleasant Gap; Frank and Newton, in Kansas; Mrs. Loretta Vohey, in Ohio; and Mrs. Elizabeth Bender, of Lancaster.

A number of the children will be at the Bilger home in Pleasant Gap to observe the 93rd anniversary of their mother on Monday. Some of the grand old lady's closest friends will also gather at the home and an appropriate celebration is planned, one of the features of which is an old-fashioned supper.

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Lemont Couple, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Coble, Celebrate.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Coble, well known residents of Lemont, had a most delightful celebration at their home on Tuesday when their children and families, with a number of friends, gathered in honor of their Golden Wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Coble were married at the United Brethren parsonage in Coleville fifty years ago by Rev. Smith, then pastor of the local church. They have resided during their married life in Lemont and vicinity. Mr. Coble has followed for many years shoe repair work. They received many gifts, including $75 in gold and several beautiful floral tributes, one being a wedding bouquet of 50 daffodils.

Among those present were Rev. and Mrs. J. Max Kirkpatrick and son; the six children and families—Mr. and Mrs. William Coble, Lemont; Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Thompson, Pine Grove Mills; Mr. and Mrs. Orrie Bryan, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Coble, State College; Mrs. Margaret Waite, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coble, of Bellefonte—19 grandchildren, 1 great grandchild; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gearhart and daughter, of Pine Grove Mills; Mrs. Lydia Clark, of Lock Haven; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Haldeman, of Renovo; Mr. and Mrs. John Shuey, Mrs. Alice Williams, John R. Williams, of Lemont; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Eiters, of Oak Hall. Rev. Kirkpatrick talked delightfully for a time and the afternoon was spent in pleasant social chatting. The only guest who had anything to do with the wedding fifty years ago was John R. Williams, who engaged the minister at that time.

The guests gathered at the home at 10:30 and a delicious luncheon was served at the noon hour. They extended congratulations and best wishes to the honored and esteemed couple.

MARRIED 50 YEARS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fall Stover Observe Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Fall Stover, highly esteemed residents of Bellefonte for many years, quietly observed their 50th wedding anniversary on Tuesday.

Mrs. Stover's maiden name was Miss Anne Stover and she is a native of Unionville. Mr. Stover is a native of Clarion County. Both are 71 years old. Their children were home for the occasion, excepting Curtin B., of Akron, Ohio, and Cameron, of Butler, Pa., who found it impossible to come at this time.

OLD FARM HOME BURNED SAD BLOW TO SISTERS

Large Dwelling on McKnight Farm
Prey to Flames.

BARN IN NO DANGER

Two aged sisters of Bellefonte, the Misses Margaret and Martha McKnight, of North Spring St., had one of the saddest blows of their long life on Saturday evening when fire of undetermined origin burned to the ground the large dwelling on the McKnight farm, near Hunters Park, about 4 miles west of Bellefonte. The loss was considerable, and the women carried only $500 insurance, tenant farmer, also suffered a loss which he feels keenly.

The fire was first discovered by neighbors a short time after the Caspers had started for Bellefonte. The neighbors saw the reflection in the windows of the house and they sent to Bellefonte for aid. The Undine Fire Co. responded, but the buildings were too far from an adequate water supply and nothing could be done. A timely breeze carried the flames and beat away from the outbuildings and nothing was burned but the dwelling.

Part of the house was more than a century old and there was some excellent lumber in it. It was one of the landmarks of that section of the county and could not be replaced today for $5,000, although it was run down considerably the past few years. It seemed very dry and burned very rapidly with great heat. The sisters and their brother, Robert J., of Philadelphia, have been much broken up over their loss, especially the sisters, and no decision has been made as to rebuilding.

The farm is one of the largest and, when kept in shape, one of the most fertile in Buffalo Run valley. It adjoins the Hunter farm, now owned by Lyman Bickie, and extends from the main road south to the Clark school house. The Casper family lost most of their household goods, neighbors being able to save articles on the first floor, but nothing in the other parts of the house.

Fire had broken out in a partition of the house on the Wednesday preceding, but Mr. Casper cut away the plaster and lath and thought he had extinguished this blaze by pouring in quantities of water. It is presumed that the blaze was not entirely extinguished and had been smoldering, breaking out on Saturday evening. Another theory was that rats or mice might have carried matches between the partitions and ignited them.

TWO LADS INJURED.

Auto and Coaster Wagon Have Collision at Street Corner.

John Edward Wilkinson, 7 years old son of Prothonotary and Mrs. Roy Wilkinson, familiarly known as "Jack", and a playmate, Melvin Fore, 7 years old, had a narrow escape from serious injury on Friday afternoon about 4 o'clock.

The lads were coasting on Spring street, near the Reformed church, in Melvin Fore's wagon. An automobile driven by Mr. Robinson, broom manufacturer of Milesburg, passed along Linn street and collided with the wagon. Both boys thrown to the street. When the car was stopped the wagon was found tightly wedged underneath the front axle.

The Wilkinson lad was cut and bruised about the face, head and body. Young Fore sustained a bad cut on the back of his head, and his right knee was sprained. Both youngsters are recovering nicely, and no serious results are anticipated.

Twp. Supervisors to Meet.

The third annual convention of the township road supervisors of Pennsylvania will be held in Harrisburg next week, Feb. 12 and 13. At the annual meeting of each county association, two delegates are elected to represent the county at the state convention. They are paid transportation and $4 per day for not more than two days, this being paid by the county. An attendance of 198 is anticipated. A special program has been arranged with interesting discussions. The delegates from Centre County are: O. P. McCord, of Rush Twp., and N. J. Wilson, of Half Moon Twp.

Charged With Assault.

Fred Davis, of Bellefonte, charged by Edward Zorn with felonious assault, was giving a hearing on Wednesday. He furnished $500 bail for his appearance in court.

Timely Tips on Income Tax for Automobile Owners

Hundreds of automobile owners in Centre County, many of whom are now engaged in making up their income tax returns for 1923, will find both interesting and helpful the following digest of the income tax law and various rulings, which has been carefully prepared by the Keystone Automobile Club of Philadelphia:

All license fees may be deducted from the gross income as well as the tax on gasoline. The gasoline tax in Pennsylvania was 1 cent a gallon from January 1 to June 30, and 2 cents a gallon from July 1 to December 31.

The federal tax on new cars, which increases the selling price, is not deductible by the purchaser, nor is the federal tax on accessories.

The cost of gasoline, ordinary repairs and upkeep of an automobile, including garage rent and chauffeur's salary, if used wholly for business purposes, is deductible as an expense of the business. The cost of substantial or permanent improvements to the car, such as a new top or body, is not regarded as repairs, and is not deductible. A physician, lawyer or other professional man is entitled to a similar deduction if the car is used primarily for professional purposes.

If the automobile is used partly for business or professional purposes and partly for the pleasure or convenience of the taxpayer or his family, such costs may be apportioned according to the extent of the use for purposes of business and pleasure or convenience, and only the proportion of such cost justly attributable to business or professional purposes is deductible as a necessary expense.

The owner of a car used wholly for business purposes is entitled to deduct a reasonable amount for annual depreciation in the value of the car; the owner of a car which is used solely for pleasure purposes is not entitled to a deduction for depreciation.

If the car is used partly for business and partly for pleasure purposes the depreciation is to be apportioned accordingly. Thus, if the annual depreciation of your car is figured at $300, and 40 per cent of the mileage for the year was for business purposes, the deduction for depreciation would be $120.

In figuring the amount of the depreciation of the car for the taxable year it is necessary first to estimate the probable life of the car in terms of years. The life of a car is ordinarily estimated at from four to seven years, according to the usage. The salvage value of the car should then be estimated as of the end of the active life of the car. This amount should be deducted from the purchase price, and the difference should be divided by the number of years estimated for the life of the car. This gives the annual depreciation.

The life of a car used by a physician is seldom estimated at more than four years.

The premium paid for automobile liability insurance is considered a part of business or professional expense, and is deductible as such in computing net income. When the car is also used for pleasure purposes such item is deductible, but the item must be apportioned. Thus, if a lawyer uses his car 30 per cent of the time for professional purposes, 30 per cent of this item as well as other costs of upkeep and ordinary repair may be deducted.

If your car is used exclusively for business or professional purposes and is damaged in an accident, the entire cost of repairs and new parts may be deducted as a business expense or loss. If the car is used for pleasure purposes as well, the item is not deductible. If the accident occurred while the car was being driven on pleasure purposes.

A salesman who maintains his own car in order to perform his duties to his employer and earn his salary may deduct as a "business expense" the actual expenses satisfactorily shown to have been incurred in the operation of the automobile for business purposes, plus a proper allowance to cover depreciation.

If a business or professional man who uses his car for business or professional purposes also uses it to drive from his home to his office, this is not considered a business use, but rather a matter of convenience and in apportioning the use of the car as between business and pleasure uses, he should not make any deduction for operating costs incident to such use.

The cost of a new car is not a deductible item.

A fine paid for violation of the motor vehicle act or traffic regulations is not a "business expense" even though the car was at the time of the violation being driven (by the owner or employee) on business purposes and is not deductible. It is, of course, not deductible if the car was at the time being driven for pleasure purposes.

If you borrow money for the purpose of buying an automobile, the interest you pay on such obligation is properly deductible from your gross income in determining net income only in case the car is to be used for business or professional purposes.

Highway Dept. Turns Down Bald Eagle Road.

Secretary P. D. Wright, in charge of the State Highway Department at Harrisburg, has formally turned down the project for completing or even extending the concrete highway in Bald Eagle valley during 1924. This is the road which it is proposed calling the "Bald Eagle Trail."

Farmers, school children and others in that valley will have to continue to travel in the mud several years longer, at least. The only encouragement accorded them by Secretary Wright is that they can "expect improvement" for their section "sometime" in the "next three years."

Furthermore, Secretary Wright declared that his decision is final, and that it will be useless to send delegations to Harrisburg to discuss the matter.

In asking for the improvement it was contended only that the Bald Eagle valley road was considered sufficiently important to be included among others selected throughout the State for the 1924 schedule. Secretary Wright referred sarcastically to this by telling the Bald Eagle valley people that he "can easily understand from your standpoint, and that of others in Centre County, that the section of road referred to is the most important in the State." He then pointedly mentioned that it isn't. No one had represented that it was.

Secretary Wright's letter, which was addressed to Dr. R. L. Piper, of Tyrone, was read at a meeting of the "Bald Eagle Trail" committee at Port Matilda on Monday evening. Disappointment was caused by the rejection of the desired improvement, and regret voiced that the committee has been unable to secure a hearing before Secretary Wright to explain the facts in the case. It was the consensus of opinion of the committee that Secretary Wright had killed the project for the present year, at least. Mr. Wright's letter follows:—

Dear Dr. Piper: I realize quite fully that much disappointment was inevitable when we made the announcement of the additional mileage to be added in order to complete our 1924 program. There are, in all, over a thousand miles of Primary System still in the mud. The program announced last week took care of 150 miles of this and this 150 miles consisted of the most important sections of the Primary System from a state-wide standpoint. I can easily understand from your standpoint and that of others in Centre County that the section of road referred to is the most important in the State, but that does not necessarily mean as you can imagine, that it is the most important from a state-wide standpoint.

There are over a thousand miles of road today on the Primary System in the same condition which you report. We still stick to our pre-election statement that we expect to provide for the Primary System out of the Bond Issue and you can, therefore, expect improvement of this section sometime in the next three years, but unfortunately not in 1924.

Our decisions are based on careful analysis of all facts and factors, particularly as supplied by our Highway Transport Survey. Pressure and presentation does not add to the strength of a request. No matter how vigorous a presentation may be made, nor how strongly supported in numbers, the facts and the merits of each particular case as compared to that of others is what decides the issue.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) P. D. WRIGHT,
Secretary of Highways.

It is not, however, to be presumed that the organization will let the matter drop. The committee believes that with a united effort and more time in which to prove to the Highway Department the need and importance of this road, that their efforts will bear fruit, and that their appeals will be considered by the department in making up their program for 1925. With this in mind it is urged that all committees organized throughout the valley will continue their efforts working toward a consolidation of the committees into a permanent organization.

OLDEST DRUGGIST DIES AFTER YEAR'S ILLNESS

W. S. Zeller Passed Away at Home on Tuesday Morning.

IN BUSINESS 54 YEARS

W. S. Zeller, Bellefonte's oldest druggist, died at his home at the corner of Howard and Allegheny streets on Tuesday morning at 8:45 o'clock after a year's illness. He was about during most of this period however, being seriously ill about three weeks.

The deceased was a native of Mercersburg, a son of Jonathan and Henrietta Zeller, born on July 6, 1843, making his age 80 years, 6 months and 29 days. He came to Bellefonte 54 years ago and had since been engaged in the drug store business, occupying the drug store in the Crider's Exchange building for most of this period.

He was married to Miss Elvira McManus on January 28, 1874, and she passed away about two years ago. They had no children. One brother, John C. Zeller, of Lock Haven, survives.

Mr. Zeller was of quiet, retired disposition. He was a charter member of the Pennsylvania Pharmaceutical Association and since coming to Bellefonte was a member of St. John's Episcopal church, a vestryman and for many years the accounting secretary. Funeral services will be held from the home Friday at 3 o'clock by his pastor, Rev. M. DePal Maynard. Burial will be made in the Union cemetery.

In respect to his memory, all business places in town will close on Friday from 2:45 until 4 o'clock.

HELD AS IMPOSTOR

Ex-Convict Charged With Personating Officer Here.

The self-imposed glory of being a "special investigator" for the State Welfare Department, of Harrisburg, and which halo one George P. Gable had been rather mysteriously moving about Bellefonte for several weeks past, blew up suddenly this week. Gable's bubble burst when David B. Simpson, field representative and fiscal supervisor for the Welfare Department, arrived in town.

Without disclosing his identity at first, Simpson called on Gable, who had established headquarters at the Garman House. Gable glibly told Simpson all about it, that he was a special investigator for the Welfare Department, specializing on prison conditions at Rockview, and a lot more. Regarding credentials, Gable confided in Simpson that he had been appointed by a man named Lotz, living in some other county, who had a personal letter from Governor Pinchot.

Simpson laughed. He couldn't help it. Then he became indignant. He couldn't help that very well, either. He denounced Gable as a fake and impostor. For the next few hours Simpson did a little investigating. This, he stated, revealed that Gable is an ex-convict, without visible means of support. He was released some time ago from Rockview. The first known of him here was when he suddenly landed in Bellefonte a short time ago, and registered at the Garman House. From day to day rumors gained circulation. He was accepted as a Pinchot booze detective. Chief of Police Dukeman called on Gable Monday night and gave him a sharp calling-down for some rumors traced to him. Gable denied everything, which was probably good judgment, for Dukeman's inclination was to punch him on the nose, and the Chief swings a husky fist. It was but another day until Simpson appeared, and Gable's glory disappeared. Before leaving town Simpson dictated the following statement:—

"One Mr. George P. Gable, residing at the Garman House, Bellefonte, Pa., who is impersonating as a special investigator for the Department of Welfare of the State of Pennsylvania, is an impostor. He has no connection whatsoever in this capacity, or any other capacity, with this Department."

Only a few days ago Gable burst into the office of Prothonotary Wilkinson, in company with a prisoner from the county jail, and didn't so much as ask, but demanded an immediate hearing for the latter. Prothonotary Wilkinson ordered him out and advised Gable to get the prisoner back to the jail as quickly as possible. From that moment on, seemingly, things went from bad to worse for Gable. The appearance of Simpson was the climax.

Simpson has been at Rockview prison classifying titles for a short time. The Welfare Department forwarded to him a letter which Gable had written to Harrisburg criticizing prison conditions. Simpson walked into the Garman House, and out walked Gable's glory—or rather, out it flew.

Now Gable is in jail, having been arrested yesterday charged with personating an officer of the law.

WOODROW WILSON DEAD END CAME PEACEFULLY

Former President Collapsed on Friday, Died on Sunday.

NO STATE FUNERAL

Former President Woodrow Wilson died at his late home at Washington last Sunday morning at 11:15 o'clock. Private funeral services were held at the Wilson home yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, followed by services in a nearby church. The body was then placed in a mausoleum until definite plans may be made for its final resting place.

Although he had been ill for several years, during which time he had taken little part in public life, it was only last Friday that the former President was confined to his bed. He became worse rapidly and attending physicians made it known that his chances for recovery were extremely remote. His long and patient struggle to regain his health had captured the admiration of the country and the news of his sudden and serious collapse awakened the sympathy of the public. Announcement of his passing away was received with profound sorrow throughout the land. The official statement explaining the immediate cause of his death was as follows:

"Mr. Wilson died at 11:15 o'clock, (Sunday, February 3). His heart's action became feeble and feeble, and the heart muscle was so fatigued that it refused to act any longer. The end came peacefully. "The remote causes of death lie in his ill health, which began more than four years ago, namely: General arteriosclerosis with haemoptysis. The immediate cause of death was exhaustion following a digestive disturbance which began in the early part of last week, but did not reach an acute stage until the early morning hours of February 1."

At the bedside when death intervened were Mrs. Wilson, who was the former President's second wife; Miss Margaret Wilson, a daughter, and Dr. C. Roy Grayson, the family physician. Dr. Grayson had attended Mr. Wilson during the eight years the latter was President and naturally knew more about his physical condition than any other physician. The late President Harding, who always was solicitous as to Mr. Wilson's health, personally had Dr. Grayson, who is attached to the navy, assigned to Washington so that he might remain constantly in touch with the Wilson household.

As soon as it had become known in Washington that Mr. Wilson had died, President and Mrs. Coolidge called at the Wilson home to extend sympathy and offer any aid possible. Returning to the White House, President Coolidge issued a proclamation decreeing a thirty day period of mourning. Flags everywhere were placed at half-mast. Public business in all parts of the country was suspended during the hour for the funeral services. Respecting the wishes of the family, plans for a state funeral from the national capital were abandoned.

The proclamation issued on Sunday by President Coolidge was as follows:

By the President of the United States of America.

A proclamation.

To the people of the United States: The death of Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States from March 4, 1913, to March 4, 1921, which occurred at 11:15 A. M., o'clock today at his home at Washington, district of Columbia, deprives the country of a most distinguished citizen, and is an event which causes universal and genuine sorrow. To many of us it brings the sense of a profound personal bereavement.

His early profession as a lawyer was abandoned to enter academic life. In this chosen field he attained the highest rank as an educator, and has left his impress upon the intellectual thought of the country. From the presidency of Princeton University he was called by his fellow-citizens to be the chief executive of the state of New Jersey. The duties of this high office he so conducted as to win the confidence of the people of the United States, who twice elected him to the chief magistracy of the republic.

As president of the United States he was moved by an earnest desire to promote the best interests of the country as he conceived them. His acts were prompted by high motives and his sincerity of purpose cannot be questioned. He led the nation thru the terrific struggle of the world war with a lofty idealism which never faltered him. He gave utterance to the aspiration of humanity with an eloquence which held the

HAD TO LET HOUSEWORK GO

So My Husband had to do the Work.
Completely Restored to Health by
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

South Bend, Indiana.—"I was all run-down, tired out, and had pains in my back and bearing-down pains. I was so sore I could hardly drag myself around and was not able to do a bit of housework. My husband worked all day in the shop, and then came home and helped me at night. The doctors said I had female weakness, and there was no help but to be operated upon, and of course that would cost us a great deal. My husband heard about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at the factory and one night he stopped at the drug store and bought me a bottle of it. I had begun to think there was no help for me, but I took three bottles of it and now I feel like myself once more. The price for three bottles wasn't so much as the doctor had charged. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough."—Mrs. DORA OSBORNE, 430 Sherman Avenue, South Bend, Ind.

Women troubled with female weakness should give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial—now. For sale by druggists everywhere.

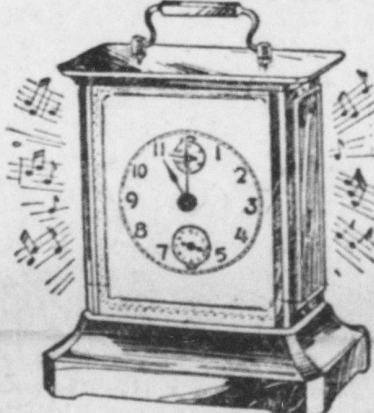

Worth More Than Gold

The rhea of the Argentine pampas and the Patagonian wasters has been done to death in thousands and its feathers sold, says Nature Magazine. Heron feathers were worth eighty dollars an ounce, four times as much as gold; and, as man has murdered his fellowman for gold since he first stood on two legs, the bird was doomed.

EX-PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON

PRESIDENT WILSON WAS HUMAN PHENOMENON OF GREATEST WAR

At 54 No More Than a University Professor and Political Writer; at 63 in a Place of Power and Fame and Honor Unsurpassed in History—Defended His Unsuccessful Peace Policies to the Last.

History, in determining the place of Woodrow Wilson, 28th president of the United States of America, will pass judgment upon the most prominent world-figure of the events growing out of the most momentous war of all time. From the viewpoint of hundreds of millions of lovers of liberty Woodrow Wilson stood at the zenith, as the ex-kaiser stands at the nadir.

The great war brought to the front many men whose names will live in honor. In the last analysis three men stand out: Wilson, Lloyd George, Clemenceau. Of these three it was Wilson who held the world's eye—Wilson, the human phenomenon of the times, until fifty-four no more than a college president and political writer and at sixty-three on a pinnacle of fame and honor and power unsurpassed if ever attained by any man in history.

It is impossible now to differentiate between Woodrow Wilson the man and Woodrow Wilson the head of the most powerful nation of earth in wealth, material and fighting men. Certainly he could not have reached the place he held without great ability and extraordinary capacity for leadership. By virtue of his place he became a focus of world attention as soon as the great war began. Before the armistice was signed he had become a great moral leader with the ear of the peoples of the world. Only as such could he have forced upon the allied world the unofficial acceptance of his project of a league of nations, with its fourteen points as set forth to congress January 18, 1918.

Abroad and at Home.
The enthusiasm evoked by President Wilson's visits to Paris, London and Rome was proof of his unique place in the regard of the people. It was evident that he was to Europeans not so much a man as a voice—a voice putting into words what they wanted and had not been able to express; his ideas and ideals were a sort of religion to them.

But he showed himself a statesman as well as a voice. He played the game masterfully. He established sympathy between himself and his man or his crowd. He made few if any mistakes in taste or judgment. He "matched his mind," to use his own expression, with the best of Europe and he got his league of nations before the peace conference and got it adopted.

President Wilson's two months in Europe may be divided into phases. When he landed the attitude toward the league of nations was this: The government of France was antagonistic; Great Britain's was suspicious; Italy's was skeptical. The first phase, his triumphant progress through France, England and Italy opened the eyes of these governments to his hold on the people. The second phase, the preliminary work of the peace conference, convinced these governments that President Wilson had an idea rather than a set plan which he purposed to force upon them. This simplified the situation and the rush to climb on the bandwagon began.

Contemporary estimates of President Wilson at home were as wide apart as the poles. Senator J. Thomas Hodin (Dem., Ala.), when representative spoke on the floor of "Woodrow Wilson, the greatest apostle of world liberty and democracy since Jesus Christ."

Senator Thomas W. Hardwick (Dem.) of Georgia, said January 21 in the senate: "I believe in a written constitution. I believe in a strict interpretation of it. . . . and I believe that unless we leave and abandon this mad saturnal of imperialism here at home and return to the ancient principles of our fathers there will be no safety nor happiness for the people of this republic."

Senator Albert B. Cummins (Rep.) of Iowa expressed the half-way view when he said in the senate January 23: "I think President Wilson is the most intensely practical statesman of this or any other day. He began his administration in the belief that the executive office had not the power that it ought to have. He has accomplished more in the direction in which he set his face and his mind than any other man, either in this generation or in any former generation; and the only criticism, if it be a criticism, is that he has not marched in the right direction and has done things that he ought not to have done."

In the process of wrestling from congress all the powers he believed the Constitution conferred upon the executive, President Wilson made many political enemies who questioned not his ability, but his motives and methods. To particularize would be largely to review the political history of the last six years. The railroad situation, however, may be cited as an example. Representative E. E. Denison (Rep.) of Illinois said January 15, 1919, "Government ownership of railroads will be the dominant political issue in the next national campaign and Mr. McAdoo will of course expect to be the candidate of his party. He will hope to capitalize what has been done for the railroad men."

President Wilson was re-elected in 1916 upon a peace platform. October 25, 1918, just before the congressional elections, he issued an appeal to the voters of the United States asking them, if they had approved of his leadership and wished him to continue to be their unembarrassed spokesman in affairs at home and abroad, to express themselves unmistakably to that effect by returning a Democratic majority to both houses. The result of the elections was to change the political complexion of both houses as follows: 65th congress—Senate, 51 Democrats and 45 Republicans; house, 215 Republicans and 213 Democrats. 66th congress—Senate, 47 Democrats and 49 Republicans; house, 239 Republicans and 193 Democrats.

President Wilson in attending the peace conference made several new departures. He left the country during office. He took the office with him, signing acts and making appointments while in Paris. He ignored the senate, though he is empowered by the Constitution to make treaties "by and with the advice and consent of the senate."

He appointed as the American representatives himself, Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Henry White, Edward M. House and General Tasker H. Bliss. He sailed December 4, 1918, and arrived at Paris December 14. The French capital was en fete for the occasion. December 24 he went to England and thence to Italy. He returned to Paris January 8, after a journey that resembled a "triumphal procession."

After the preliminary sessions of the peace conference President Wilson returned to the United States in February, returning to Paris March 15, 1919, he signed the peace treaty June 28, 1919, and returned to the United States July 8. His second term as president expired March 3, 1920.

After his retirement from the presidency Mr. Wilson lived quietly, making a partly successful fight to regain his health. He occasionally went to the theater and rode much in his car about the environs of Washington. He bought a home in Washington and in 1921 formed a law partnership with Bainbridge Colby, who had been his secretary of state, succeeding Robert Lansing. He took part in the funeral procession of President Harding in Washington and was the recipient of much public attention.

Mr. Wilson's last public utterance was last fall. November 10, 1923, the eve of Armistice day, he spoke by radio to the American people, defending his peace policy and saying that the American people had withdrawn into a "gloomy and selfish isolation which is deeply ignominious because manifestly cowardly and dishonorable."

Armistice day Mr. Wilson briefly addressed thousands from the front steps of his home, concluding thus:

"I am not one of those that have the least anxiety about the triumph of the principles I have stood for. I have seen fools resist Providence before and I have seen their destruction, as will come upon these again—utter destruction and contempt. That we shall prevail is as sure as that God reigns. Thank you."

Why You May Need—

There are three main groups of prospective buyers of Chevrolet automobiles and commercial cars.

First, are all who know from comparisons or through the experiences of friends that Chevrolet provides the utmost dollar value in modern, economical transportation of people or merchandise.

Second, the large group of people with modest incomes who have the false impression that so good a car as Chevrolet is beyond their means.

They do not realize that due to engineering excellence and full modern equipment, Chevrolet operating and maintenance costs average so low that during the life of the car, it delivers modern, comfortable, fast transportation at the lowest cost per mile, including the purchase price.

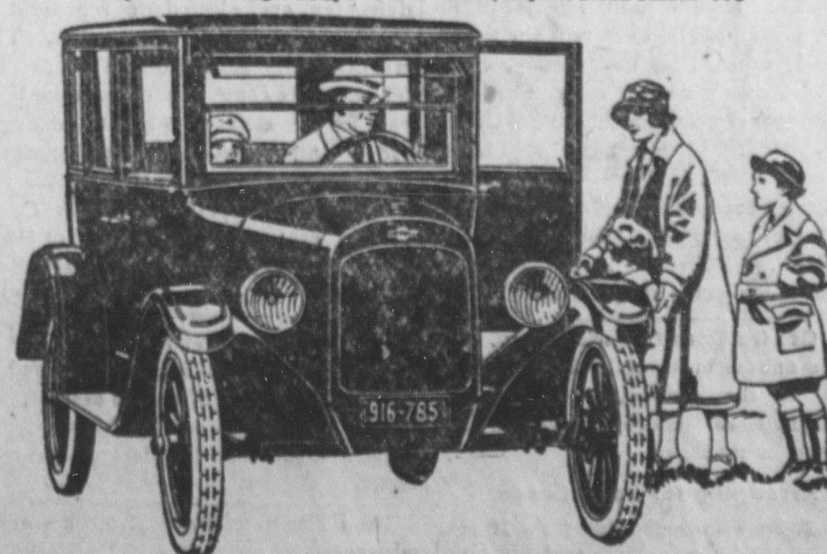

Third, the smaller but very important group of car owners of ample means, only a small percentage of whom as yet realize that Chevrolet as an extra car virtually costs them nothing, due to the reduction in their transportation expenses effected by it.

We respectfully suggest consideration, investigation and comparison of Chevrolet with any other car at any price.

Boy Actor Cuts Throat in Stage Fight Panic

Viriden, Ill.—Supposed to end his life by cutting his throat with a razor during a school play at Viriden, Sylvester Wilson, seventeen years old, was seized by stage fright. He forgot which was the back and the front of the razor. He decided to take a chance rather than spoil the play—and decided wrong. Nine stitches were necessary to close the wound.

ENRAGED ALLIGATOR GRABS KEEPER'S LEG

Movie Cameras Infuriate Reptile in Gotham Zoo.

New York.—A seven-foot alligator, infuriated by the chatter of motion-picture cameras pointed at him, nearly gobbled up John O'Brien, head keeper of the Prospect Park zoo. The alligator caught O'Brien's leg in his huge jaws and would have torn it off if William Ostrander, an assistant keeper, hadn't risked his fingers to save his chief.

Ostrander strained on the alligator's jaws to loosen his grip, while O'Brien, in great pain, tore his leg free. His leg was badly torn. Ostrander's hand was lacerated by the alligator's teeth. The attack of the alligator broke up what was intended to be a simple ceremony. A group of officials who, as guests of City Chamberlain Berolzheimer on St. Simon's Island, in Georgia, recently captured the alligator in a swamp, were making a formal presentation of the reptile to the zoo. Maurice Connolly, borough president of Queens; Park Commissioner Benninger of Queens; Park Commissioner Harman and his secretary, Willis Holly, were among them.

Movie cameras were stationed eleven feet from the alligator, the operators having been warned it could leap ten feet in the air. They started to grind as O'Brien slipped a noose about the upper jaw of the alligator. The great body made a sudden twist. Its jaw snapped on O'Brien's leg. After O'Brien had been rescued, a dozen employees threw the alligator into its pool. O'Brien was taken to his home.

Pet Opossum Tries in Vain to Escape Owner

Washington.—While this story is being written, Ossip Opossum, a most ungrateful animal, is turning over in his small brain divers plans to escape from the residence of a true friend and benefactor. Twice overcome by the master mind of man, but only with difficulties, he now is cooking up a third maneuver.

Recently Ossip was saved from poverty and privation by a friend of Irwin B. Linton, 2008 Thirty-sixth street northwest, who was returning to the city through New Cut road in an automobile directly behind that of Mr. Linton. Ossip was taken home and placed in the basement. Further, he was placed in a barrel with a weight over the opening. The next day the weight was off, and, after diligent search Ossip was found at the bottom of a big woodpile.

Moved to the garage and again injected into the barrel, Ossip spent several days in meditation. The other morning an empty barrel, minus one of its staves, was all that greeted Mr. Linton. A search that threatened to prove futile ensued, when Mr. Linton happened to think of a most ridiculous place to hunt. And where do you suppose he found Ossip? Why, he was nestled close to the carburetor, under the hood of the automobile. And Mr. Linton is still trying to figure how he got in there.

Stockton, Cal.—The only barber in the mining town of Melones is under quarantine for scarlatina with the result that there is a tense situation in view of a clubhouse dance, dinner and program. Miners began trooping into town during the day and stood about the barber shop in large numbers, gazing disconsolately at the quarantine sign displayed on the door.

"They teach us first aid here," said one of the miners, "but the operation of a safety razor isn't in the curriculum."

Some of the feminine residents also were wondering where they would get their hair bobbed.

Is Winter Time Your Backache Time?

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, aching and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day? Do you know these troubles are often due to weakened kidneys?

Winter's colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. The kidneys are apt to weaken and fall behind in filtering the blood. Poisons accumulate and upset blood and nerves.

Then comes constant backache, rheumatic pains, headache, dizziness and kidney irregularities.

Don't wait! Delay is often serious. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Doan's have helped thousands. They are recommended by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

David Bright, prop. garage, 93 S. Second St., Greenville, Pa., says: "I had a continual pain across my kidneys. When I stooped, I got awful catches in the small of my back and it hurt me to straighten. My work was hard because of the pain and my kidneys were too frequent in action. I had to get up at night to pass the kidney secretions. I got Doan's Pills and a couple boxes cured the backache and put my kidneys in good condition."

Mrs. Mary M. Tarr, 25 S. Race St., Greenville, Pa., says: "I was bothered with kidney trouble and the most noticeable symptom was backache. My back ached badly and when I did housework the pain made me feel weak and tired out. From morning till night my back hurt me and I didn't feel at all like myself. My kidneys were irregular in action. I began using Doan's Pills and a couple boxes drove away the backache and regulated my kidneys."

OVER THE COUNTY

Revival services in the lower Evangelical church, in Penn's valley, closed recently. There were 26 seekers and 25 conversions reported.

Billy Heckman, Jr., has been nursing a sore hand. He was chopping wood and a piece was knocked from the block and struck the back of his hand.

Edward Byers, who has been operating the Rockville grist mill, has decided to vacate this spring and move to Millburg where he will be employed in the body and gear works.

Rebersburg will soon have two school buildings as a result of crowded conditions brought about by bringing into the town school the pupils from the Gramley school and the Wolfs Store district.

Clayton Sheelsy, of Woodward, captured a wildcat that weighed 26 pounds. This was the fourth wildcat for him to get this season. Earl Motz also caught a big one, so that there will be at least five fewer wildcats in the Woodward region.

Among the many beautiful specimens of work in his taxidermy profession, Wilbur Strungart, of Rebersburg, has a trout 28 inches long that was caught in a most unusual manner. The speckled beauty was caught between two large stones in the creek in the Millheim narrows and wedged so tightly that it could not extricate itself. Lester Hosterman discovered it and took it from the rocks but it was dead. He had it mounted.

TRANSFUSION IN VAIN

Snow Shoe Miner's Injury Proved Fatal.

Infection set in and hindered healing, causing hemorrhages until the patient became so weakened from loss of blood that transfusion was resorted to. The infection continued, however, and caused more hemorrhages, finally resulting death.

The deceased was 38 years old. He is survived by his widow and family. He was a native of Austria-Hungary and it was a fellow countryman that agreed to give of his blood in the effort to save his life. Burial was made at Snow Shoe on Monday.

Forecasting A Tremendous Spring Demand

more Ford cars and trucks were produced last year than the previous year, an increase of over 50 per cent.

In spite of this tremendous increase in production, it was impossible to meet delivery requirements during the spring and summer months when orders for 350,000 Ford Cars and Trucks could not be filled.

This year winter buying for immediate delivery has been more active than ever before—and in addition 200,000 orders have already been booked through the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan for spring delivery.

These facts clearly indicate that the demand during this spring and summer will be far greater than ever, and that orders should be placed immediately with Ford Dealers as a means of protection against delay in securing your Ford Car or Truck or Fordson Tractor.

ENTHUSIASTIC GATHERING

Business Men Want Co-operation With Rural Districts.

The Associated Business Men of Bellefonte had a delightful and enthusiastic get-together meeting in the dining room at the Brockerhoff House on Tuesday evening. Landlord Landay served one of his delicious roast beef and ham suppers which was much enjoyed.

Walter Cohen, the toastmaster, stressed the need of co-operation and getting in still closer touch with the rural districts.

Prof. W. R. Gordon, of the Pennsylvania State College, spoke on community co-operation. His talk was filled with good pointers, worthy consideration of the local merchants and from which they expect to profit. As special entertainment, several solos were rendered by Russell Blair in his pleasing style, and musical selections were rendered by Miss Marjorie Hill, pianist, and Albert Cohen, cornetist.

Found Human Hand.

Children found a human hand, well preserved, near the Penn Public Service Company's power house at Philipsburg, the other day and reported it, police officers taking charge. It was the left hand of a man. The fingers and nails and much of the flesh were on it. The bones did not appear to be crushed but the cutting was such that it was difficult to tell how the hand came to be severed from the body. Investigation revealed nothing as to whose hand it might be and it was burned by the chief of police.

Basket Ball.

The Bellefonte High School girls basket ball team trimmed the Lock Haven girls in a fast game at the armory in Bellefonte on last Friday evening. The score was 23-12. The locals were too fast for the visitors and played the splendid game which has been their custom this season. The Bellefonte High School boys fared poorly, being defeated in the armory by the Hollidaysburg team. The score was 38-8 and indicates just what happened.

H. F. Lauer

New Castle, Pa.—"Some years ago I had a chronic bronchial affection which developed into an asthmatic condition. I was living up around Cleveland at the time where it was damp and I was afraid I never would be any better. Then my father-in-law advised me to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and from the time I started to take it my condition improved. I took three bottles and was cured of the chronic bronchitis besides being built up in my general health. I never fall to give Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery the highest recommendation, for it is the best medicine I have ever known for bronchial irritation and coughs."—H. F. Lauer, 309½ W. SUMMONS OF DEATH COMES PEACEFULLY TO EX-PRESIDENT WILSON

On Being Told By Admiral Grayson, His Attending Physician, That the End Was Near, He Replied, "I Am Ready"—Nation in Mourning

OVERWORK DURING WAR CAUSE OF BREAKDOWN

Washington, D. C.—Woodrow Wilson died at 11:15 Sunday morning. The end was peaceful. Life ebbed away while he slept.

A tired man, he closed his eyes and, "sustained and soothed by an unfaltering trust," passed on to the great hereafter "like one who wraps the drapery of his couch about him, and lies down to pleasant dreams."

Dr. Grayson, his friend and physician, announced the end of the great War President in this bulletin:

"Mr. Wilson died at 11:15 o'clock. His heart's action became feeble and feebler, and the heart muscle was so fatigued that it refused to act any longer. The end came peacefully.

"The remote causes of death lie in his ill health which began more than four years ago, namely, general arterio-sclerosis with haemiplegia. The immediate cause of death was exhaustion following a digestive disturbance between her hands the wan, withered right hand that had proved the pen mightier than the sword. Near the foot of the bed was his eldest daughter, Margaret, resigned to the inevitable. Close by, tears welling from his eyes and coursing down his cheeks was Dr. Grayson, taking the measure of the fluttering pulses, weaker and fainter with each effort.

In the street before the square brick house where he has lived with his memories, his hopes and his regrets, was another scene. There was a gathering of people there. It was not a crusading throng come to Mecca in Pilgrimage to attest their faith in the ideals he personified.

Last Words, "I Am Ready."

Mr. Wilson's last words of sustained meaning were: "I am ready." Realizing fully that he could not hope to rally from the onslaught of the digestive disorder which sapped his strength, weakened his heart and which began in the early part of last week but did not reach an acute stage until the early morning hours of February 1."

Death's Slow, Grim Advance.

The grim reaper had forced his way into the house after waiting on the doorstep more than four years. Saturday he had advanced to the landing on the staircase and stood counting off the ticks of the great clock. Saturday night he knocked on the chamber door. A faithful physician and a loyal wife stood with their backs against it. At 9 o'clock he rattled the knob and called to the peaceful, prostrate figure on the bed—a great bed, long and wide, a replica of the bed in which Abraham Lincoln slept in the White House, with a golden American eagle and a tiny silk American flag just over the headboard.

The watchers knew the battle was lost. At the portal of the door now open, the faithful Negro servant hovered. On the bed sitting beside her husband, sustained with all the fortitude and composure of a woman facing a crisis, was Mrs. Wilson, holding accentuated the condition which followed his first stroke of paralysis, he watched for a moment when all except Dr. Grayson were out of his bed chamber.

Drawing his friend and physician close, he murmured with some difficulty of articulation:

"The old machine has broken down. You've done your best for me. But it's better that I should go than to live on a helpless invalid. Tell Mrs. Wilson I want her. I'm ready."

All this was without a show of emotion, but in his usual measured habit of speaking. Mrs. Wilson came at the physician's call and spoke for several moments with her husband during which he communicated to her some last wishes.

From that time on Mr. Wilson lived out his last fleeting life with the full knowledge that he was on the threshold of the great beyond. If, in his dying moments, he harbored any feeling at all for the men in public life who prevented the fulfillment of the ideals for which he repeatedly had said he would have been glad to give his life, he never gave any indication of them.

Fined for Eating Peanuts.

Clearfield, Pa.—Pierre Roussey, from the Frenchville end of the county, is the first man ever arrested in this section of the state for eating too many peanuts. He was compelled to pay a fine of $1 for violation of a borough ordinance. Roussey ate so many peanuts during a two-hour stand on a business thoroughfare that the shells made a pile several inches high. When the chief of police found the man the shells covered the sidewalk. The $1 fine was collected by Burgess Kittleberger.

Saved From Angry Mob.

Weirton, W. Va.—When he was picked out from a crowd of spectators as the assailant of Mrs. Hazel Hamill, aged 18, Aleck Gomez, aged 25, of this place, was rescued from an angry mob by police. Affidavits charging Gomez with attempted attacks upon Mrs. Hamill and Ada Rossa, 9-year-old school girl, have been filed. Just as the townspeople were about to mete out their own punishment, officers arrived and by using their clubs forced their way through the crowd and rescued Gomez.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by the American Legion News Service.)

CLOSER CONTACT TO AID EX-SERVICE MEN

"Try to bring about a closer and more human contact between the ex-service men and government agencies which are directly hospitalization and rehabilitation."

These were the words of National Commander John R. Quinn of the American Legion to a writer for an eastern magazine, who is preparing a series of articles on veteran aid to be used soon.

"Two and one-half billion dollars have come out of the pockets of American taxpayers for this purpose," he said. "The annual budget for the care of veterans now totals $450,000,000. That's plenty of money. The trouble is that in the past there has been scandalous waste."

"Whatever sum we spend we want it spent honestly. And the service it buys should be sufficient and inspired. Too often the government has been indifferent and unnecessarily severe. I've talked to men in hospitals who have deliberately left the care of United States physicians for private institutions because they abhorred the life in government-run sanitariums. That's a reproach to our officials."

Prosecute Politicians Who Use Legion's Name

Persons who use the name of the American Legion wrongfully in claiming political support for candidates will be vigorously prosecuted. The attitude of the veterans' organization on political questions is well known, and posts are never drawn into such endorsements with sanction of national and department officials.

A recent instance of this was in Nebraska, where the chairman of a county central committee issued a statement that the Legion post at Gering had endorsed the candidacy of a certain politician. When called on by the Legion men, the chairman made a retraction of this statement that the endorsement was given by the post, saying that "100 per cent of the members had privately endorsed the candidate so he felt this was official action by the post."

Department officials have promised prosecution in this instance, if it is found that the original statement was unauthorized by the post.

Men Warned Against Sharing With Lawyers

Enlisted men who are entitled to additional training pay for service in the training camps for the World war, according to a recent decision, are warned against payment of fees to attorneys for collection of such money.

Under a ruling of the comptroller general, men of that camp who receive the pay of privates first-class—$33—are entitled to receive $100 for each month of service.

American Legion officials are suggesting that such men send direct to the general accounting office, 1734 New York avenue, Washington D. C., for this money, and not to pay the ten per cent fees demanded by certain attorneys who have circularized the country in an effort to obtain business.

Fewer Legion Men to Look for Positions

Business conditions in New England for the winter of 1923 and 1924 are much better, in the opinion of American Legion officials of Springfield, Mass. Last year the Legion's employment office in that city was besieged for many days by former service men seeking work, and more than 300 were placed in permanent positions in one month. During the present winter, however, the employment office of the Legion has been called on to place but eighteen men, all of whom are still on the job in Springfield.

Kentucky Legion Men O. K. Roads Bond Act

Endorsement of a $75,000,000 bond issue for good roads, schools, and state institutions, has been given by the American Legion in Kentucky, according to recent advices from state officials, and by several posts of the organization.

Two-thirds of the money would be used for good roads, in order that Kentucky may no longer be called the "detour state." Aid to the state university is also contemplated in the bill, which is already before the state legislature.

To Probe Hospitalization

A survey of World war veterans in New Jersey, with a view to ascertaining if such men are receiving proper hospital treatment, has been undertaken by the American Legion of that state. Under direction of Philip Forman, department commander, the Legion hospitalization committee will immediately begin work, and if the results show that many veterans are not receiving treatment, will urge on congress that hospitals be established in the state to care for them.

LEGION AUXILIARY TO HAVE BUSY YEAR

Mrs. Helen A. Bishop, national president of the American Legion Auxiliary, grew interested in the work of the service organization through her war service to men in the training camps. Following a long period of work at Camp Devens and other Eastern training centers the auxiliary leader saw that there was a definite need for some organization to carry on the work left off by other service agencies at the signing of the armistice.

Carrying her problems to American Legion officials in Massachusetts, she was apprised of the organization of the American Legion Auxiliary, and set out immediately to form units in a section of Massachusetts near her own home. Soon this work became statewide, and she was selected as organizer for the whole state. This work opened a long and useful service to the auxiliary which was rewarded at San Francisco by her selection as national president.

Auxiliary work is well under way this year and 1924 gives promise of being the greatest that the women aids of the Legion have yet experienced. The organization has grown numerically each year, and Mrs. Bishop hopes to increase the membership to 300,000 during her term of office.

In making committee appointments for the year, Mrs. Bishop chose women to head the work well qualified for the positions.

Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, president of the American Legion Auxiliary during 1923, has been named chairman of the foreign affairs committee. In announcing the appointment of Doctor Barrett to this position, Mrs. Bishop took cognizance of the former leader's experience in foreign affairs, and an international reputation as a worker for women's welfare.

Doctor Barrett was one of four American women accorded the honor of witnessing the signing of the Versailles peace treaty. In 1919, she was the American member of the International Conference of Women in Geneva, called to bring about disarmament. She has, on several occasions, represented the United States government on foreign missions, twice going to the Near East at the instance of the bureau of immigration.

Dr. Helen Hughes Hiescher of Mankato, Minn., has been appointed to head the rehabilitation work of the auxiliary during the ensuing year. Doctor Hiescher was one of the "first presidents" of the organization, organizing the auxiliary in Minnesota. She has always played a prominent part in auxiliary affairs. Doctor Hiescher is a practicing physician and during her husband's absence with the colors, took over his work in Mankato. Following a visit to hospitals for service men in Minnesota in 1920, she closed her offices and has since devoted her time and efforts to care of disabled soldiers. Because of her activity, a revolving fund called the "Helen Hughes Hiescher fund," has been established by the auxiliary in Minnesota, from which service men may borrow without payment of interest.

Mrs. Lowell F. Hobart, another past national president of the organization has been named by Mrs. Bishop to head the committee on co-operation with other organizations. Mrs. Hobart was president of the auxiliary in 1922.

Other appointments as committee chairman announced by Mrs. Bishop are those of Mrs. Walter Beals, Seattle, chairman of the legislative committee; Mrs. W. H. Morgan, Edwardsville, Ill., chairman of the child welfare committee; Mrs. B. W. Black, Salt Lake City, chairman of the hereditary committee, and Mrs. John Marshall, Anchorage, Kentucky, as chairman of the finance committee, a re-appointment.

Post Will Aid City

A certain fund set aside by officials in Patchogue, L. I., for erection of a memorial to World war soldiers, will be devoted to construction of a new firehouse for the community. This was made possible by action of the American Legion members in that place who have a nucleus of $5,000 which they expected to spend on a post home, in connection with the fund already appropriated by town officials. Citizens will also be asked to subscribe so that the new edifice will represent an expenditure of approximately $18,000.

Bloviat, a New Word

There is a word which, so far as I know, is local to Washington, and largely to its newspaper and political fraternity. The word is "bloviat." It is not in the dictionary. (I have just looked and found there is no word of which the first four letters are "blov.") You pass from "blousing" immediately to "blov." But although the word is not in the dictionary, those whose ears have quick apprehension of the meaning inherent in sounds, will already have guessed its significance. When a public man, especially one rather given to speechmaking, is invited to adorn and address the annual dinner of this or that, we say he has gone out of town to bloviat. The word carries an implication of ornate, rotund speech and partly of expansion of the ego.—Mark Sullivan in McNaught's Monthly.

The long table goaded under the famous dinner service, which for so many years, with other heirlooms, had been the object of a great lawsuit between the English queen and king of Hanover, and which the English crown lawyers gave in his favor.

The princess royal recognized the service at once and was much hurt.—Detroit News.

Roads Employ Many Men

There are 77,000 trolley car motormen employed in this country every day on the electric railways. It requires 63,000 conductors for their cars. Approximately 150,000 other men are employed on the tracks and in the shops and car houses of these electric railways.

The wages of this large group of men are derived from the receipts of the electric railways from fares paid by their passengers.

THE BURDEN INCREASED

By AGNES G. BROGAN

(Copyright, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

PIERRE came down the snowy pathway holding the child sheltered against his breast. Unconscious of the gale that buffeted he walked on, absorbed in troubled thought. It was of Meg that Pierre was thinking. Meg with her dusky hair, her soft blue eyes—and far from softened nature.

Long had Pierre loved Meg—unavailingly. He believed that he might have won this woman of his heart, had not other responsibilities—in Meg's opinion—shut her out. His mother had been an invalid since his boyhood; patient in her crippled state, she spent the weary hours of her son's absence in the big bed which Pierre had placed in the living room, near the fire. He realized that in her early widowhood his mother had spent her strength in privation and labor, in this far country to which her young husband brought her.

His father's people had been fur traders, well content with their lives of adventure and isolation. Pierre, too, as a boy, enjoyed the cold winters in the open—the woods, in the glory of spring.

When Meg, with her Scotch father came to occupy the cabin on the edge of Combers wood Pierre's cup of joy had run over. Never had he known a woman so beautiful—so endearing. The young man formed a habit of stopping at the cabin to ask the Scotchman's advice on various ventures, to watch Meg adoringly as she went about her household tasks.

An independent creature was Jamie Caven's daughter. Pierre found her no easy subject to woo, his very life offered at her feet.

"Well, mayhap some day," was the laughing answer she gave to his proposal of marriage.

When Jamie Caven died the woodsmen saw to it that Meg lacked no needed assistance. Meg preferred to remain in the lonely place, cheerful, to outward appearance, aloof still to the man who loved her. At length she confessed to Pierre the reason of her refusal to marry. "You are not free to offer yourself to a woman," said Meg cruelly, "when you have the constant care of another upon your hands. You've had burdens long enough, and may have always. I'm for living, free Pierre, my own life. So, good-by."

He had turned from Meg coldly; in his secret heart had been a cherished picture of her, there with his gentle mother, in the big house desolate so long. Since that day of sorrowful disillusionment Pierre had not seen Meg. Now, he trudged on through the snow with his added burden. If there had been hope of winning Meg at some later day, that hope was shattered with his joy. Robert Wesly, dying in his shack in the wood, had begged his trusted friend to look after his motherless atom of childhood.

"I cannot leave Lily with some hireling here," he moaned. So, Pierre carried Lily sheltered in his kindly arms. He thought that his mother might keep the baby beside her on the great white bed while he, following her direction, would give the best care he could. The wind tore at his breath. Pierre, glancing through unheeded tears, saw Meg's lighted cabin before him. Led by an overwhelming impulse, he made his way to the cabin door. She opened to him. Pierre pushed his way in before her. "I could go no farther without resting," he explained, then placed the small bundle in the woman's arms.

"Robert Wesly's baby," Pierre said, his voice rough with pain—"an added burden I've taken on—to widen the breach between us. Robert died today."

Meg was bending over the baby. "Why," she said breathlessly—"Why, the tiny dear thing. I'm like a child, Pierre, that's longing for a doll, and all at once the doll is brought to her. Leave poor Robert's baby here the night. I'll be knowing best what's to do for her, and in the morning I'll fetch her to your home."

Pierre was back at the cabin very early in the morning, his sled waiting outside. He had lain awake in the hours of the night, fearing that Meg's softened mood might pass. She met him with an eager smile. The baby caught Meg's smile—held out tiny hands for her caress.

The cabin floor was covered with bits of gay cloth. "Where I've been sorting the pieces to make clothes for Lily," she told the wondering Pierre. "You see, the pink frock of mine that you used to like, and the blue one will make pretty dresses for Lily, when she'll be walking next summer. The red cape is to be cut up at once to fashion into a warm coat and bonnet."

"Next summer!" faltered Pierre, "then you will still see me, Meg—help me with the baby, perhaps? Ah! that would be a comfort."

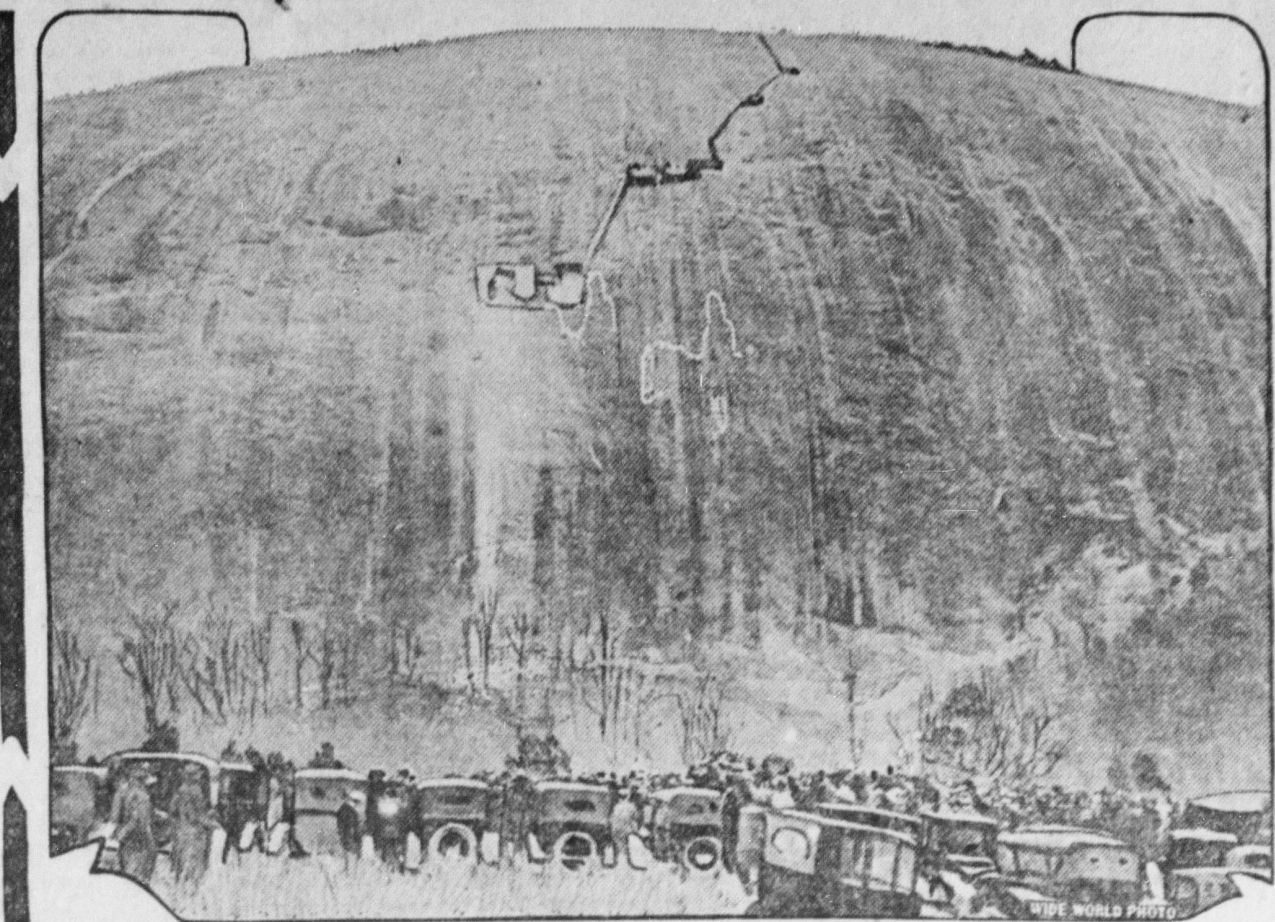

Meg pulled the knitted cap over her dusky hair. "There are burdens and burdens," she remarked, "but when a man has one too many, why, then the woman who loves him must take it upon herself, and gladly to share them. I am going with you this morning, Pierre, kindly heart, to arrange with your mother to make the house habitable for your larger family."

Meg slipped into her lover's arms. "Your mother and your wife," she said, "we're going to have a time spoiling that baby."

One Reason for Nervous Disorders

YOUR doctor can tell you that nervous disorders are very common among Americans. One reason for this is found in the fact that they are great coffee drinkers.

Coffee contains caffeine, a drug, prescribed by doctors as an emergency stimulant for the heart and nervous system. It has a tendency to increase blood pressure, develop heart irregularities and cause digestive disturbances.

If you feel that coffee is not good for you, serve Postum as your meal-time drink.

Postum is a pure cereal beverage that refreshes and satisfies. It is absolutely free from caffeine or any other irritating drug.

The condition of Miss Ella Gates continues serious. Miss Gates fell at her apartment in the Crider's Exchange last Thursday morning, presumably a short time after she got up in the morning. She was not discovered until noon when a friend entered the apartment door, which was not bolted, and found her lying as though dead. A physician was promptly summoned and strenuous efforts were resorted to to bring her back to consciousness. It was evening before she responded to treatment and, while her condition is slightly improved she is not yet regarded as out of danger. Physicians think Miss Gates bumped her head and that her condition was caused by concussion of the brain rather than a stroke as at first surmised. POLICE OFFICERS MEET Plans Adopted to Stop Motorists Speeding to Fire.

Burgess W. Harrison Walker invited the police officers and members of the fire and police committee to his office on Tuesday evening for a discussion of methods to prevent speeding to fires, a nuisance that is considered a dangerous menace in Bellefonte. The police officers were present but members of the fire and police committee of council did not attend.

The police officers were sworn in as follows: Chief-of-Police, Harry Dukeman; police of borough, Thomas Howley; Logan fire police, Clarence McCafferty, Alexander Morrison, Arthur Brown, Thomas Morgan, John G. Love; Undine fire police, George Friedly, Gottlieb Hang, Frank Doll, John Anderson, Ralph Eyer.

A number of other fire officers including Robert Kline, fire marshal, and John J. Bower, Logan chief, were present. In the discussion it was brought out that the tendency of many drivers to race their cars to fires is a very dangerous practice and one which hinders the firemen in carrying out their duties to the best advantage. To prevent this, police officers were instructed that a state law prohibits racing and interference, stating plainly that cars must be parked at the sides of the street until fire apparatus is driven by. A committee was named to draw up a set of rules and regulations to be well advertised and printed on post-cards to be mailed to every known driver of a car in this vicinity. The committee was named as follows: Robert Kline, George Carpeneto, Ralph Eyer, John J. Bower, and John G. Love.

MOTOR LICENSE TANGLE State Highway Dept. in Hot Water Result of Drastic Ruling.

The State Highway Department, under the Pinchot administration at Harrisburg, last Friday created trouble and inconvenience for thousands of automobile owners by issuing a drastic order invalidating all 1923 motor licenses that day. Several hundred thousand motorists have not been supplied with licenses, although a great many of them made application before January 1st. The State Highway officials defended their ruling with the statement that the department had been unable to keep up with business. Had the department been so disposed, it could have extended the time for 1923 licenses a month or two more.

In Philadelphia the police department heads were among the thousands who applied for but failed to receive 1924 licenses. Consequently police were ordered not to arrest any motorist who filed application before January 1st.

DEATH WATCH FIXED

Man Who Slaw Wife, Falling in Suicide, Faces Chair.

John Barnes, of Uniontown, after a remarkable recovery from a gunshot wound in the head, is to be electrocuted at Rockview on March 3. A death watch has been placed on Barnes in the Fayette County jail where he must remain until a few days before the date scheduled for his death.

Barnes and his wife were estranged when trouble started because his wife kept strikers as boarders during the recent coal strike in the Conneville region. When she refused to return to him, he shot her twice on the main thoroughfare of the east end section of Uniontown. He then fired a bullet into his head and fell across her body.

She died a few hours after the shooting affair, in the city hospital, and physicians expressed slight hope for Barnes' recovery, the bullet having touched his brain. However, he rallied, recovered, was later tried and convicted for first degree murder.

SUPPORT STRASSBURGER

Delegate Candidate Favored in Preference to Pinchot.

A group of influential Republican leaders in the State who are opposed to electing Governor Pinchot as a delegate-at-large to the Cleveland national convention decided at a meeting in Philadelphia on Monday to support Ralph Beaver Strassburger, of Montgomery county, instead.

Among the leaders attending the meeting were David H. Lane, honorary chairman of the Republican City Committee of Philadelphia; Register of Wills William Campbell and Congressman Connolly, also of that city; former Lieutenant Governor Frank B. McClain, of Lancaster county; State Senator Schantz, of Lehigh county, and State Treasurer Charles A. Snyder. Following the conference this statement was issued:

"After discussing the general political situation with relation to the selection of a candidate for delegate-at-large, as against Governor Pinchot, it was resolved on motion of William F. Campbell, of Philadelphia, seconded by Mr. McClain, that Ralph Beaver Strassburger, of Montgomery county, should be supported for that honor.

"In common with hundreds of thousands of Republicans in Pennsylvania we believe that seven stalwart Republicans should be sent to the Cleveland convention as delegates-at-large. In view of the fact that Governor Pinchot's record, past and present, does not entitle him to be included in such a list, we have endorsed Mr. Strassburger, upon whom the Republicans of the state who are opposed to Mr. Pinchot's candidacy may unite in the coming primaries. In doing this we endorse Messrs. Mellon, Pepper, Reed, Kendrick and Vane, who have been agreed to generally.

"Headquarters will be opened in Philadelphia within a week and the merry war will begin."

In addition to those mentioned, a woman candidate, favoring Coolidge for President, will be actively supported.
